DYESS DENIES FERA PROBE

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

EIGHT hundred head of livestock consigned to Arkansas from the drouth areas of the Northwest are scheduled to arrive in Hempstead county this week-end, part of a total shipment of 20,000.

Violence Flares Up in Strike; Soldiers Patrolling 'Frisco

Guard Waterfront, Where 34 Were Shot Down Thursday

CINCINNATI RIOTS

But Union Leaders Attribute Mobbing to Communists

By the Associated Press

Violence broke out anew Friday in labor strike areas in widely-separated sections of the nation.

National Guardsmen controlled the waterfront area of San Francisco where maritime workers have been on strike since May 9.

Thirty-four persons were shot down there Thursday, at least two being fatally wounded.

In Lockland, suburb of Cincinnati, Ohio, hundreds of windows were broken as mobs surrounded the Stearns & Foster textile mill, scene of a strike. Union leaders laid the violence to Communist sympathizers and said not one in 25 were strikers.

Four men were injured in a strike battle at Bridgeport, N. J., and some 500 drill rig builders walked out in the Texas oil fields after contractors refused their demands for a $12-a-day wage for builders and $14 a day for crew-pushers.

New Officers Take Over Rotary Club

E. F. McFaddin Notes Political Speeches Expunged at Detroit Meet

The new administration took charge of Hope Rotary club Friday noon at the first July luncheon meeting.

Henry Turner, president of the club, turned over the president's gavel to Albert Graves. Other officers who will serve with President Graves spoke briefly, as follows:

Ed McCorkle, vice-president; Robert Morris, secretary; and J. K. Sale, treasurer.

E. F. McFaddin reported on the Detroit conference of Rotary International, to which he drove in company with Mrs. McFaddin, later visiting the Chicago World's Fair and Mackinaw Island far up on Lake Michigan.

Mr. McFaddin observed two unfortunate incidents in the convention program, first an anti-Roosevelt speech by Mark Sullivan, political commentator; and then a pro-Roosevelt speech by Postmaster James A. Farley. Mr. Farley's address included comments on foreign war debts owed the United States, notwithstanding the fact that many citizens from those foreign countries were present as delegates to the convention.

Mr. McFaddin, a past district governor of Arkansas Rotary and present chairman of the Club Service Committee of the international organization, touched in a speech at the convention on the ill-advised procedure of bringing political topics before a civic organization. The convention later ordered both the Sullivan and Farley speeches expunged from the record.

Louisiana Moves Against Orleans

Huey Long Directs Attempt to Seize Control of City Police

BATON ROUGE, La. —(AP)— Senator Huey P. Long's legislative forces moved Thursday to take the police power in New Orleans away from his arch-enemy, Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley.

The Long-Walmsley battle has echoed and re-echoed up and down the state since Walmsley's Old Begulars trounced Huey's candidates in the last mayoralty election.

Senator Coleman Lindsey, Senator Long's administration floor leader, picked up a harmless bill Thursday following the city of New Orleans to remove houseboat squatters from Bayou St. John, and tacked on an amendment which drew speedy opposition.

The amendment would provide that the mayor of New Orleans appoint members of the city's police board.

Veterinarian R. W. Williams will have charge of the inspection here, following which the animals will be branded ear-tagged, and placed in local pastures leased by the FERA.

Enthusiasm for livestock development in this country has cooled off considerably since raw beef prices hit their panic low. At one time Hempstead county was seriously thinking about going into the milk and beef business as a sister activity to cotton-farming.

That was when Hope launched its Kraft-Phenix cheese factory—which failed because there simply weren't enough commercial milk-producing animals in the county.

And yet, while livestock interest has been damaged by recent low prices, other farm factors tend to strengthen it in the long run.

X X X

We are probably in for a restricted cotton acreage program for several years.

There will be much idle land that will have to be turned to account. Livestock tend to replenish the land, where continual cropping without fertilization tends to deplete it. The history of American immigration is just one long story of farmers wearing out Eastern lands and then abandoning them to trek westward to virgin prairie acres. There is no more virgin land today we must work where we are.

Livestock is usually profitable in a farm area of low valuations. Since the cotton deflation of 1920-21, when improved farm land has declined below a collateral value of $10 an acre—and much of it way under that—farm prices in southwest Arkansas have moved back to where they were a generation and a half ago.

Cheap land is one of the factors necessary to cattle-raising—and today we can qualify on that score, and are likely to qualify for some years to come.

The livestock business—particularly dairying—should advance in Arkansas the next few years as it advanced in Mississippi just before the 1929 panic struck.

Petitioners Claim 30 Days More to File Amendments

4-Year-Term, and Futrell Amendments, Get on Ballot

SCHOOL, DOUBTFUL

8-Grade-Guarantee Measure Still Lacks Required 22,000

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—The probability that two additional constitutional amendments would be filed for presentation to the voters at the November election loomed Friday as their sponsors contended the constitution gave them 30 days in which to amend petitions by adding enough signatures to make the required 22,000.

Thornberry A. Gray, of Batesville, sponsor of the proposed amendment to abolish the poll tax, and various educational leaders sponsoring the proposed state-supported grammar school system amendment, conferred during the morning and were to seek advice from Governor Futrell during the afternoon as to what course to pursue.

Thursday was regarded by some as the last day for filing, and sponsors of the four-year-term for state, county and district officials qualified by filing sufficient petitions to insure the amendment being voted upon.

Two other amendments, submitted by the legislature and sponsored by Governor Futrell, and the referred educational act, also will be on the November election ballot.

Deadline Expired

LITTLE ROCK.—Petitions to submit to the voters at the general election November 6 a proposed constitutional amendment to provide that at state, district, county and township elected for two years, shall be elected for four years, were filed in the secretary of state's office Thursday the last day in which such petitions may be filed.

Sponsors of the proposed constitutional amendment to provide that the state shall support a uniform system of common schools announced late Thursday that they had been unable to obtain the required 22,000 signatures during the three or four weeks petitions were circulated.

Petitions for the four-year term amendment were signed by more than 38,000 persons, it was said by Representative H. B. Thorne and former Senator Peter A. Deisch, who have been in charge of headquarters for the movement at the Hotel Marion. They said the petitions were circulated in 50 counties.

The amendment provides that "the term of office of the governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general, secretary of state, treasurer of state, auditor of state, commissioner of state lands and clerks of the Circuit Courts county clerks, judges, prosecuting attorneys, sheriffs, collectors of taxes, assessors, coroners, county treasurers county surveyors, justices of the peace and constables shall be four years, beginning January 1, 1935."

There is no prohibition against these officers succeeding themselves for as many terms as they may choose to seek, and no provision for recalling unsatisfactory officials. The amendment would be self-executing and if approved by the voters November 4, all elected officials nominated at the August primaries would serve four years from January 1.

Two proposed constitutional amendments sponsored by Governor Futrell, to prohibit bond issues without a vote of the people and to limit appropriations for general governmental purposes, were submitted to the voters in the 1933 legislature and will be voted on at the general election in November.

Act 78 of 1933, to reorganize that State Board of Education, referred to the people following the regular session of the legislature, will be voted upon at the same election. If it is approved it will become effective immediately and if disapproved the effect will be the same as if the act had been repealed.

Her feet burned with matches and her head plunged into a tub of water until she was nearly unconscious, Miss Effie Jackson, above, Marshall, Ark., stenographer, was tortured by feudists, trying to force her to reveal whereabouts of a foe of her captors. A plea that state troops be sent to the Ozarks community to halt the feud, which has cost four lives, was made to Governor Futrell by Miss Jackson's employer, a Marshall attorney.

Belgium Link in New Peace Pact

Franco-British Understanding If Little Nation Is Invaded

LONDON, Eng.—(AP)—Technical collaboration from Great Britain in the event Belgium is ever invaded, is all that France is asking of England, and indications are she will get it, the Associated Press was reliably informed Friday.

France has not asked and does not expect any sort of political or defensive alliance with Great Britain, it was learned, not because the French would not want it but because Britain plainly informed Paris that the Locarno pact is the only one that England wishes to adhere to.

CAPE HAITIEN, Haiti.—(AP)—After promising prompt withdrawal of American Marines from Haiti, President Roosevelt joined the chief executive of Haiti Thursday in a toast to restoration of complete independent relations between the two republics.

The president came ashore from the U.S.S. Houston, which is taking him to the Pacific ocean on his vacation. During the visit he made a brief address—partly in French—at the Union Club, saying the Marines will leave Haiti within a month or six weeks. He expressed hope that the marines

BERLIN, Germany.—(AP)—France, through her ambassador here, Thursday night vigorously denied she was involved in the plot against Chancellor Hitler's government which was broken up by the week-end executions.

"A formal protest to the German government was planned after the Nazi press had accused the late Gen. Kurt von Schleicher of having dealings with France."

The killing of von Schleicher, who in 1932 was chancellor for 55 days, was justified, the newspapers insisted, on the basis of the "heinous crime of entering into negotiations with France thereby giving the idea to Paris that the Nazi system is not going to last."

French Ambassador Andre Francois Poncet branded the charge as an "absurd fable" and protested strongly against the "great prominence" given the story by German newspapers.

The ambassador was said by French sources to have promised when he called at Wilhelmstrasse Wednesday the German press would not be permitted to draw France into the matter. Hitler had accused some of the plotters with negotiating with foreign powers.

Statement Recalled

The German newspapers' articles accused von Schleicher, one of those executed by Hitler's men, of having dealings with France while he was chancellor in 1932. French Foreign Minister Louis Barthou was accused of revealing the von Schleicher plot to the British at Geneva in May, 1930.

"Hitler's days are numbered," Barthou was represented as saying.

The French ambassador's statement, French sources said, were made doubly emphatic because he learned his name had been mentioned since von Schleicher was shot. The two men were said to have dined together within the past few months, and this was emphasized in some circles.

The embassy declared that the dining had no significance as Francois Poncet had many friends among influential Germans.

It was revealed by officials of the Nazi party that Chancellor Hitler's private army of 2,000,000 Storm Troopers among whose leaders the shots of firing squads fell thickest, is doomed. These officials confirmed reports that after the July vacation the plan of the Storm Troopers in German life will be greatly changed, indicating that 30 per cent of the men will be retained.

25 Carloads of Peaches Shipped

Rains in Highland District Improve Quality of Record Crop

NASHVILLE, Ark.—Up to Thursday morning 25 car loads of early peaches had moved from Nashville this season, with more of the crop yet to move.

The early peach shipment has already been more than the full season last year and there are still more to move. The movement by truck is equally as large as last year.

The Fair Beauty crop started moving here about Wednesday, and this crop will amount to a number of carloads it is believed.

The price of the fruit is still holding up well. It is reported, the orchardists being well pleased with the prices they are getting, both from the trucks and from rail shipments.

Rains all over the orchard district the first part of the week have already been a great help to the peaches, and with but little more rain before the harvest opens about July 25 will insure the finest quality during the Elberta season. The Elberta crop is now estimated at from 2500 to 2800 cars in this district.

Tomatoes are also still moving from Nashville, with their price at 1 1/2 cents a pound. Up to Thursday five straight cars of tomatoes, one mixed car of potatoes and tomatoes and three cars of potatoes had been shipped from here.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

Iden That Jack Garner Is Fifth Wheel Is All Wrong . . . Shocking, But Even Brain Trusters Have Hangovers . . . General Casts His Vote for Loin Cloths.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—Jack Garner, the vice president, is somewhere down around Uvalde, Texas, for a summer of hunting, fishing, and loafing.

Before he left, he blasted one carefully effused concerning him and largely nourished another one.

He trampled with both feet on current reports that he was out of sympathy with the Roosevelt program. That was in a statement lauding the New Deal, issued by the Democratic National Committee.

Those who have heard Garner speak in private of "that fellow down in the White House" didn't need his public assurance that he would follow Roosevelt through the fires of hell if F. D. happened to be going that way.

The fact is, Jack is a small town banker and he just loves the government of Wall Street control.

But Garner also let his name be signed to a magazine article in which he wistfully confessed that he was just a "fifth wheel."

Insiders know better. The vice president is the authority on Congress at cabinet meetings, and that's an important job. On the Hill, he's the man who knows what the cabinet and cabinet are doing and thinking.

He's continually consulted at both ends and probably knows more about what's happening and what's going to happen than anybody else in town.

His 30 years in the House, ending with the speakership, have fitted him for an unprecedented though secret three-cornered liaison job with Roosevelt, House and Senate.

Don't imagine the old boy never speaks up at cabinet meetings. He talks plainly and frankly.

Secretary Roper once brought up the case of a Commerce Department employee who had received $500 for a magazine article. Should federal employees be allowed to write for pay or not?

Although the Roosevelt family, White House secretaries, and many other New Dealers had been doing just that, Garner argued vigorously against the practice. He insisted officials shouldn't take the money available only because they held public positions.

Roosevelt, argued from one end of the table, Garner from the other. Nearly half the cabinet supported Garner! But the practice continues.

Brain Trust Hangovers
End of the college commencement season was almost as important as adjournment of Congress.

Most Brain Trusters returned to class reunions or to make speeches at their alma maters. Their old chums were generally proud of them, but they had a lot of explaining to do.

Any way, quite a few turned up here nursing what are known in non-intellectual circles as hangovers.

But all minds are clear again now and the country seems safe until next June.

He Votes for Loin Cloths

Gen. Rafael Nogales, famous soldier of fortune, who has fought in Turkey, Haiti, South and Central America, China, and elsewhere, dropped in at the office here to curse the heat.

"Why can't we all wear loin cloths?" he demanded fiercely. "Gandhi has the right idea." Secretary Hull seemed cool in straight straw hat, sunnervest brown coat and white flannels as I met him in Lafayette Square and walked to the State Department with him. He talked, not of foreign affairs or tariff bargaining, but of the immense amount of delayed construction which would bring prosperity if it once got under way.

Several celebrities here are veterans of the Sinclair Lewis cocktail party which started at lunch and lasted until midnight. The Clarence Darrows, the Rex Tugwells, and Jerome Frank were among those who dropped in, but could not stay through.

and you should have heard the angry yelps of two diplomats at Secretary Hull's lunch to President Lopez of Colombia when fragments from a photographer's bursting flashbulb landed in their cantaloupes!

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Parents, Be Firm in Guarding Possessions From Children

"If I want a clean dress shirt for a party," revealed an outraged father, "I have to hide it two days ahead of time, for I know darn well Red will get there first and I'll find an empty drawer when I begin to get ready."

Added a mother, "And I put my best stockings on in the morning if I want them for afternoon, or Rita will be hinking all over the country in them. I haven't a vote on my own clothes."

Both of which statements may sound untrue or weak-minded to the uninitiated, but are neither, as the parents of great big children will attest.

"Lock the doors, the drawers and set steel traps. That's what I'd do," shout the bachelors, the spinsters and the childless. "It's nobody's fault but their own."

Respect for Belongings
"Yes," I sigh, "but that would only be a couple of locks and one trap. What would you do about the other things? Almost every article in the house, personal and otherwise, belongs to parents. You cannot put sofas, pillows, or fishing reels, portiere ropes, or violent bows under lock and key, for this is only a short list of missing of ruined articles reported by other parents in the same conclave as the owners of the shirt-thirsty boy and the stocking-snatcher girl."

Now are parent to brew in their children the precious fluid of respect for their belongings?

Personally I do not know the answer. It isn't outgrown as most things are—it gets worse as a rule instead of better as they grow.

They don't seem to be rude or cheeky. The point of view is clear. It runs, "Mother (or Dad) would never want me to do without. They always want me to have everything I need. They fuss but they don't really care."

Which is a perfectly untrue thing.

Parents Must Be Firm
Parents are human beings. They treasure belongings which have cost a struggle to get. And they are particularly proud of their own personal effects, be they shirts, stockings or needle-point pillows. The truth is that children take the opposite view—anything belonging to their parents isn't very important, they consider.

There is a difference in these young sprigs, of course. Not all will appropriate family possessions. Like everything else in training, the right attitude must be cultivated in early childhood.

But even with this behind them, the fact remains that youth seldom has real respect for the possessions of parents. Even if they don't touch them they never mightily interested.

It is one thing about which I should not declare a truce. They like us better if we come right out and say, "That's mine. Now clear out. No, I don't care if you're stuck. Take care of the things I buy you as I do my own."

It takes backbone to guard possessions. I think that almost any parent may declare an ultimatum with a clear conscience.

Gen. Rafael Nogales, famous soldier of fortune, who has fought in Turkey, Haiti, South and Central America, China, and elsewhere, dropped in at the office here to curse the heat.

"Why can't we all wear loin cloths?" he demanded fiercely. "Gandhi has the right idea." Secretary Hull seemed cool in straight straw hat, sunnervest brown coat and white flannels as I met him in Lafayette Square and walked to the State Department with him. He talked, not of foreign affairs or tariff bargaining, but of the immense amount of delayed construction which would bring prosperity if it once got under way.

Several celebrities here are veterans of the Sinclair Lewis cocktail party which started at lunch and lasted until midnight. The Clarence Darrows, the Rex Tugwells, and Jerome Frank were among those who dropped in, but could not stay through.

and you should have heard the angry yelps of two diplomats at Secretary Hull's lunch to President Lopez of Colombia when fragments from a photographer's bursting flashbulb landed in their cantaloupes!

A Very Strange Case Indeed

judging someone else too harshly, try to put yourself in his or her place and it's more than likely that you will find yourself thinking up excuses for the person. Try to overlook the defects in others and to see their good points instead. Remember that none of us is perfect. By judging other people as you'd have them judge you, you're sure to be happier, and therefore more beautiful.

DYESS DENIES

Gates differed from W. R. Dyess, state administrator, concerning several phases of the program, and it was believed she included her suggestions in a report to Washington of her activities here.

Existence of rumors concerning the PERA was conceded by the state official Thursday in a bulletin sent by Mr. Dyess to all departments of the Emergency Relief Administration.

Bureau Bulletin

It read as follows in part:

Reports reaching this office indicate that in some counties rumors have recently been circulated to the effect that drastic changes would be made in the county organization.

"We wish definitely to dispell and uncertainty that might prevail in the different divisions of the relief program."

Mr. Lane was in conference most of Thursday with state PERA officials. It was learned that he had consulted various persons regarding the character of appointments made by Mr. Dyess, indicating that the national PERA had taken cognizance of criticism based on assertions that Mr. Dyess is looking forward to a campaign for governor or United States Senator in 1936. There was no indication that anyone had offered tangible evidence to support such an assumption.

Hero of a dramatic rescue in the Gulf of Mexico is Captain George McBride (above), of the United Fruit Line. Zaccari, who picked up 17 members of the crew of the Norwegian freighter Kaut Hamen after the nitrate-laden ship burst into flames. A lifeboat with 18 other men of the crew was still adrift when Capt. George McBride made his rescue.

Officers sharing in the reward were former Texas Rangers, Frank Hamer and B. M. Gault. Dallas Deputy Sheriffs Bob Alcorn and Ted Hinton, and Sheriff Henderson Jordan and Deputy Paul M. Oakley of Beville parish, La. They ambushed the outlaws May 23.

Expenses for the two former rangers including money paid for information were $1,500. Phares would not divulge the names of those who received pay for information.

Public contributions swelled the patrol's "Barrow apprehension fund" to more than $4,000, but $3,100 expenses were deducted, Phares said. The payment was exclusive of $500 offered by Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson and a small balance remaining of funds contributed by employees of the state highway department which will be paid by the highway commission.

New Crisis Feared in Cuban Cabinet

Resignation of Mayor of Havana Disturbs President Mendieta

HAVANA, Cuba.—(P)—Faced with the possibility of another government crisis as the result of the resignation of Dr. Miguel Marinio Gomez, mayor of Havana and ex-officio member of the cabinet, President Carlos Mendieta Thursday night voted to take "conciliatory measures."

Persons close to Cuba's chief executive said he "was very much upset over the resignation of Mayor Gomez" and that he would do everything in his power to bring him back to the government fold.

A session of the cabinet was called with the announced object of acting upon Dr. Gomez's withdrawal, but it was revealed in official circles that President Mendieta's secretaries had given him a vote of confidence to "settle the issue in the way he deemed most advisable."

Mayor Gomez, after several conference sessions, announced his resignation was irrevocable unless certain changes were made in the cabinet.

Political observers, among whom were several intimate friends of Mayor Gomez, revealed that Accion Republicana had presented several candidates for the cabinet during the last crisis and that they had not been given "due consideration by President Mendieta."

A Parallel

By Helen Welshimer

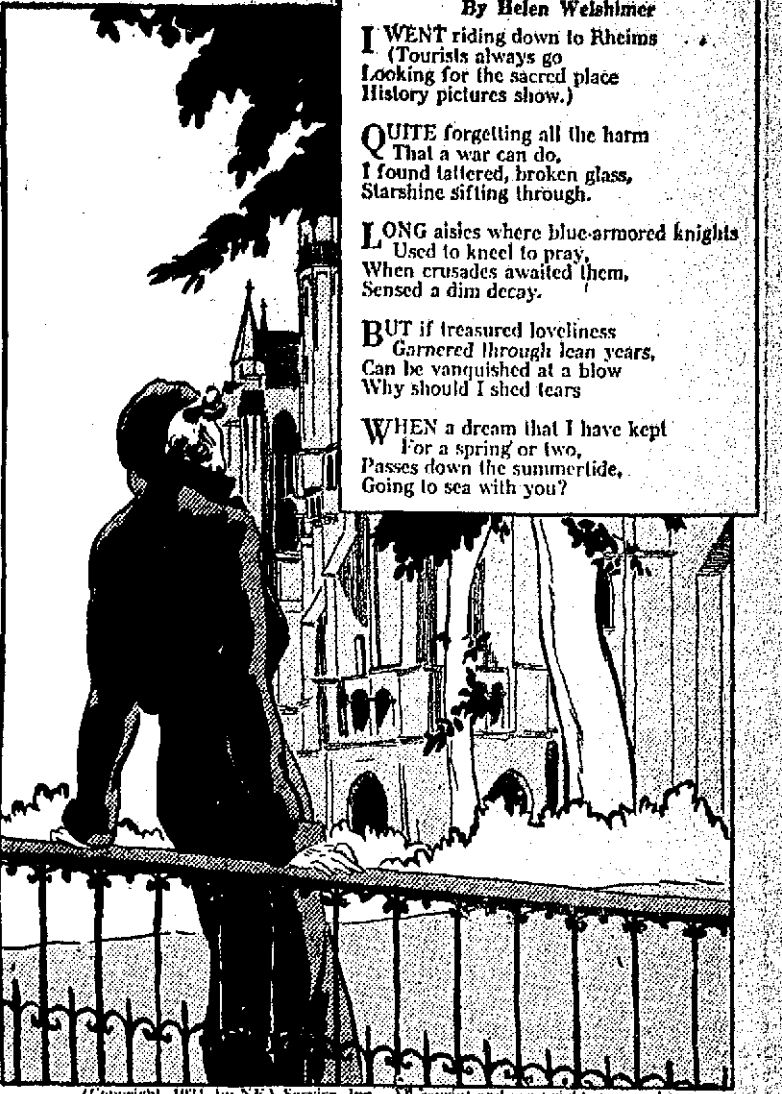

I WENT riding down to Rheims (Tourists always go looking for the sacred place history pictures show.)

QUITE forgetting all the harm That a war can do, I found tattered, broken glass, Starshine sifting through.

LONG aisles where blue-armored knights Used to kneel to pray, When crusades awaited them, Sensed a dim decay.

BUT if treasured loveliness Garnered through lean years, Can be vanquished at a blow When should I shed tears

WHEN a dream that I have kept For a spring or two, Passes down the summer tide, Going to sea with you?

A similar bill was killed in the house last week.

Senator Paul Chasor, Orleans Old Regular leader, angrily denounced the amendment.

"It isn't right for the administration to come in and try to run affairs of the City of New Orleans and tell us how we should appoint our Police Board and how we should conduct the affairs of our Police and Fire Department."

The amendment was adopted however, 22 to 13.

Sister MARY'S KITCHEN

Buy Vegetables For Two Days At a Time

BY MARY E. DAGUE
NEA Service Staff Writer

Take your list along but don't be too iron-clad about it when you go to market. Leave something to be decided according to the need of the moment and the attractive groupings on the vegetable and fruit stands.

Tomorrow's Menu

Breakfast: Plums, cereal, cream, fish hash, rye toast, milk, coffee.
Luncheon: Creamed mushrooms and eggs with Chinese noodles, salad of fresh fruits, baking powder biscuits, ginger ale.

Dinner: Fried chicken, cauliflower au gratin, peppers stuffed and baked, head lettuce with chiffonade dressing, raspberry tapioca pudding, milk, coffee.

When making the list, the way in which vegetables, meats and fruits are to be used should be kept in mind. Vegetables, wanted for soups, need not be as perfect as those wanted for table service. Coarse outer stalks of celery are quite as flavorful for soup as tender hearts and much cheaper.

Amount to Purchase

Close calculation as to the amounts needed is another aid to economical buying. Nearly all foods are cheaper when purchased in large quantities, but if there is danger of food spoiling before it can be used, nothing is gained.

ed by taking the larger amount. On the other hand, if a definite plan has been worked out to make use of the extra amount, the purchase is justified and advisable. It's often a good idea to market for two days at a time. The roast used hot for one meal may be sliced cold for the next, the extra spinach may be molded and served as a salad the second day, the outer leaves of a head of lettuce can be used in a cream soup—and so on.

By the way, peas in the pod are deceiving, for unless the pods are well filled the yield of the eatable vegetable is small. One pound of well-filled green peas in the pod will serve two people. One-half pound of green beans will serve two persons generously.

Pound of Spinach for Two

One pound of fresh spinach will serve two persons with enough left for a salad for two if the spinach is combined with egg. Vegetables like beans, corn and carrots must be chosen in regard to size. One large beet or carrot is considered enough for the average serving, but if the vegetables are small two or maybe three will be needed.

Of fruits and vegetables, two pounds per day per person are recommended by authorities. The average man doing moderately hard physical work needs from two to five pounds of vegetables alone each week in addition to five or six pounds of potatoes. People doing light work will not require so much.

The rain that fell Monday afternoon was certainly appreciated at this place.

This community is beginning to look like an oil field. It seems as if led prosperity is at last headed our way. Mrs. Nellie Leach spent Monday night with Mr. and Mrs. Roy McWilliams. Roy Rogers and family spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Elton Cassidy.

Mrs. Violet Daugherty spent a while Saturday evening with Mrs. R. D. Sharon and daughter Oma.

Captain Dropped for "Misconduct"

Harold K. Coulter Convicted of Intimacy With Divorcee

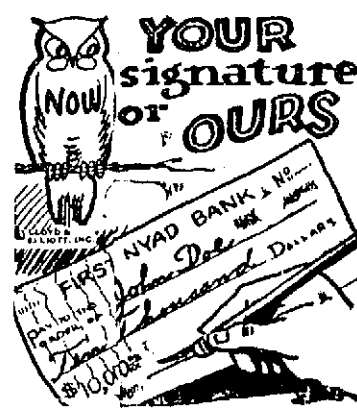

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Capt. Harold F. Coulter, who elected to stand trial by court-martial rather than accept a reprimand for alleged misconduct, was convicted Thursday and ordered dismissed from the United Army.

The court-martial, conducted at secret hearings upon the defense's request, found Captain Coulter guilty on seven counts, including four specific charges of intimacy with Mrs. Alice Taylor Morgan, divorced wife of William F. Morgan, wealthy San Antonio oil man.

"I haven't a thing to say," Captain Coulter said after the verdict.

The verdict was returned shortly after Mrs. Morgan and the captain's wife drove to the scene of the court-martial in the staff post here Thursday in the same automobile.

The trial opened last week, after Coulter, star polo player, declared he

HARRY GRAYSON

NEW YORK.—Bill Terry and Joe Cronin, who will lead the major league all-star teams at the Polo Grounds on July 10, perhaps did more than any other pair to dispel the last lingering doubt in regard to whether managing a ball club affects the performance of a player.

Personally, I believed the theory was decided years and years ago by such as Fielder Allison Jones, Frank LeRoy Chance, Fred Clarke, Napoleon Lajoie, and Bill Carrigan and later on by Tristram Speaker, Ty Cobb, and others who did a fair to middlin' job of smacking the ball while running the works.

Yet I understand that as recently as three winters ago such a wise old baseball head as the late Barney Dreyfuss would have named Pie Traynor pilot of the Pittsburgh Pirates but for the fear that the task would hamper his work at third base.

There are only a half-dozen bench managers left in the big show, and indications are that their ranks gradually will diminish until they are as scarce as the dodo bird. I rather suspect that the day shortly will come when the only dugout guides will be those owning blocks of stock, such as Connie Mack and the late John McGraw.

Eight big league strategists cavort daily, and certainly the burden of supervising the business hasn't cramped the playing styles of Terry, Cronin, Frisch, Cochran, Dykes Wilson or O'Farrell. It was lumbago that put Charley Grimm on the sidelines, and Rogers Hornsby is as formidable as ever with a bludgeon in his hands.

What effect his attempt to straighten out the Pirate will have on Traynor's play remains to be seen, but judging by the records of others and knowing the blue-eyed New Englander's temperament, off-hand I would say that he will find doubling in brass as easy as his nickname.

"As a matter of fact," says Rogers Hornsby, "managing a club should improve a player's play. He knows just what his own outfit is going to do—has the game in the palm of his hand."

Hornsby has Connie Mack's philosophy, which is the ideal one. It is that the day's game ends with the closing of the clubhouse door and that breaks even up in the long run.

Managers who take the game home with them suffer most.

Bench pilots seem to worry more than the playing kind, perhaps because they have more time on their hands. Joe McCarthy couldn't sleep after losing a game until this year, and not a few of his close to the Yankees' clubhouse have an idea he is only kidding himself when he says, "I've broken that habit."

The highly strung Casey Stengel appears to laugh off bad days, but there is no question that they take a lot out of the director of the Dodgers. His predecessor, Max Carey, probably was thinking of this when he remarked that Stengel's health might not be able to stand the strain.

Walter Johnson always appears as cool as an Eskimo, but the streets are right with his old battery mate, Eddie Gahring, when the Cleveland Indians falter.

Bill McKechnie is the studious, phlegmatic type, and Bucky Harris takes things as a matter of course.

Terry has an explanation for everything. To his way of thinking, the Giants never should lose. If a certain play had gone the other way, the New York club would have won.

Mickey Cochrane got much from Mack, including the Old Master's outlook on life and on baseball in particular, but Mickey still loves to bar-becue.

But Jimmy Dykes, educated in the same school, does not appear to throw things off as readily.

Perhaps the difference in the standing of the Detroit and Chicago clubs has something to do with the case, but the fact remains that managing a baseball team has wiped the smile off the face of Dykes.

Marland Conceded the Governorship

Tom Anglin Abandons Right to Enter Runoff Primary

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Oklahoma's New Deal candidate, Congressman E. W. Marland was handed down the Democratic nomination for governor Thursday night by Speaker Tom Anglin, Gov. "Alfalfa" Bill's choice for the nomination.

Anglin announced his withdrawal from the run-off primary, scheduled July 24, saying he would not call upon his friends for further sacrifices in the face of Marland's lead of approximately 50,000 votes in the first primary.

Although Marland received the news calmly, he expressed appreciation of Anglin's action and declared that it would create a much better feeling within the Democratic party, in which anti-Murray sentiment had created a rift.

was innocent of the charges, and said he preferred to stand trial by court-martial, instead of accepting an optional reprimand.

The sentence will have to be passed on by reviewing authorities and approved by President Roosevelt, Maj. Gen. Johnson Hagood, commander of the Eighth Corps area, in this instance will be the reviewing authority.

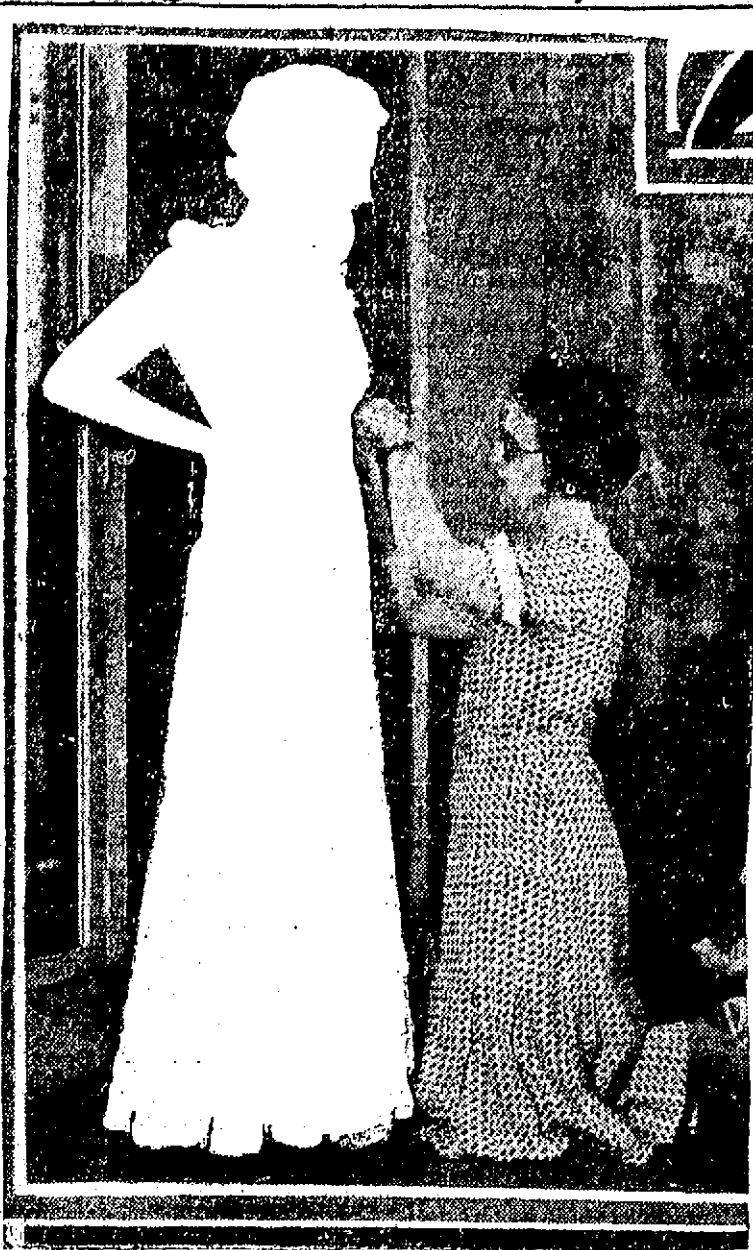

The charges of which Capt. Coulter was found guilty were:

Intimacies with Mrs. Morgan January 1, and April 1, 1934, at Mrs. Morgan's home.

Intimacies with Mrs. Morgan at a Campbellton ranch February 1, 1934, and November 5, 1933.

Wrongfully caused Corp. G. R. Perry and Pvt. Ben E. Creel to obtain pistols from the supply sergeant and act as guards at Mrs. Morgan's home. Neglected to pay $480 due as house rent.

Who's the Hope Girl That's Being Fitted for Hollywood?

Here is the standing at the end of the first week of the Saneer Hollywood Tour Contest that some girl is going to start enjoying on August 18. Mrs. E. O. Wingfield, Walter Hussman and the Saneer manager tabulated the following Thursday afternoon.

1. No. 9 Mattie Evans ..... 9,505 votes
2. No. 8 Elizabeth Bernier, 8,945 votes
3. No. 3 Corollar Walters ..... 6,980 votes
4. No. 7 Mary A. Redwine, 6,665 votes
5. No. 1 Julia Mroening ..... 6,020 votes
6. No. 6 Evelyn Simpson ..... 5,000 votes
7. No. 5 Carolyn Toland ..... 5,650 votes
8. No. 10 Mrs. O. Williams, 5,560 votes

Because you happen to be at the bottom of the first week's list doesn't mean that you, with a little extra effort cannot be at the top the following week. Two of the young ladies were heard to say that they were not discouraged and that someone had better keep an eye on them from now on. Marjane Richards dropped out to go away and Mrs. Oliver Williams returns to get in the fight.

Good news for both the public and the sales girls is: that from now on the $1.00 coupon tickets are good for any show at any time during the contest. AND the single tickets that were good only on Tues-Wed the first week will be sold by the young ladies from now on good for ANY show during the week of the sale, i. e. a ticket bought on Saturday will be good for any show from Saturday through the following Friday night.

And Contest days next week will be Thurs. and Fri. when "The Old Fashioned Way" starring W. C. Fields will be shown and tickets bought at the box office will receive votes just as was done this past Tues-Wed.

cor. to the fullest extent, and the Reemployment Officer wishes to express his appreciation to the owners of the industrial plants of the city and county for their cooperation. They feel that it is their patriotic duty to work men insofar as they are qualified to do the work, that need it most and are willing to cooperate along this line with the Reemployment Officer.

The Reemployment Officer has 313 men who are in his live file now applying for work that are idle industrial workers, and 41 women who have renewed their registrations and are in the live file applying for work through the Reemployment Service.

The National Assembly of Panama is considering a law to make compulsory the use of the Spanish language in all commercial documents.

Following is a complete operation of the Reemployment Services of the Hope office which is a part of District No. 7.

Placements on work relief; 82 men, 16 women. Of the 82 men 3 were veterans.

Placements in private industry; 343 men, 95 women. Of the 343 men, 8 were veterans, making the total placements made by the Reemployment Office for the months of May and June, 536.

Placements from relief rolls in private industry; 83 men, no women. Of the 83 men 8 were veterans.

The monthly budget for the 83 men placed from the relief rolls into private industry was fixed by the Social Welfare Department and certified to my office amounting to $555.95. The total expense of the Reemployment Office for the months of May and June, 1934 was $297.95, leaving a net balance of $658.04 that the Reemployment Service relieved the government of, covering the period of one month. Should the 83 parties have remained on the Relief Program for the two months the net burden to the government would have been twice $658.04 or in other words each month the men placed in private industry by the Reemployment Service, remained on the relief rolls in Hempstead county. A would have cost the government $555.95.

Another service the Reemployment Service has rendered to the citizens of the county is, had it not been for placing the 260 people into private industry who had already reached the relief list, a large number of the 260 before now would have been put on the government relief work.

The Reemployment Service of the county has accomplished the results it has obtained by the hearty cooperation of the industries of the city and county. After the Reemployment Officer explained to the owners of the industrial plants of the city, the purpose and intent of the Reemployment Services, they have been glad to cooperate with the Reemployment Offi-

Curie, Discoverer of Radium, Is Dead

Radium Rays Accumulating in System Kill Woman Scientist

SALLANCHES, France.—(AP)—Radium, the priceless curative agent which she and her husband gave to the world, Wednesday caused the death of Mme. Curie, the world's best known woman scientist.

The end came at 6 a. m. in the quiet sanitarium to which the 66-year-old woman had come a week ago for treatment.

Physicians said that radium rays had accumulated in her system and injured the organs producing red corpuscles.

Fernicious anemia attacked the already frail scientist and consultation of 12 leading Parisian physicians and scientists resulted in her coming to the sanitarium here.

She arrived with her two daughter and a son-in-law, who remained with her until the end. She was in such a weakened condition that she fainted twice at the railroad station and had to be taken to the sanitarium in an ambulance.

During the few days she was here she lay before a window facing Mount Blanc and gave directions concerning experiments being conducted in her Paris laboratory.

Tuesday she seemed to realize that the end was near. She gave directions that her funeral be as simple as the life she had led. She was in such a weakened condition that she fainted twice at the railroad station and had to be taken to the sanitarium in an ambulance.

Mme. Curie had carried on for 27 years the radium experiments which she had started with her husband, Pierre Curie.

Her husband was killed by a truck in 1906 shortly after the couple announced their important discovery.

The wife was honored by her own and other nations with the highest awards a scientist can win, but always shrank from public view.

She twice won the Noble prize in chemistry and was the only woman ever elected to the French Academy of Sciences.

Radium, which to bring relief to so many sufferers from cancer and other diseases, was discovered by the Curies in a makeshift laboratory. At times when she lacked funds to carry on her work, Mme. Curie was aided by friends in the United States where she traveled in 1921 and 1922.

Safety Needed in Summer Driving

Firestone Stresses Patented Gum-Dipping Process for Tires

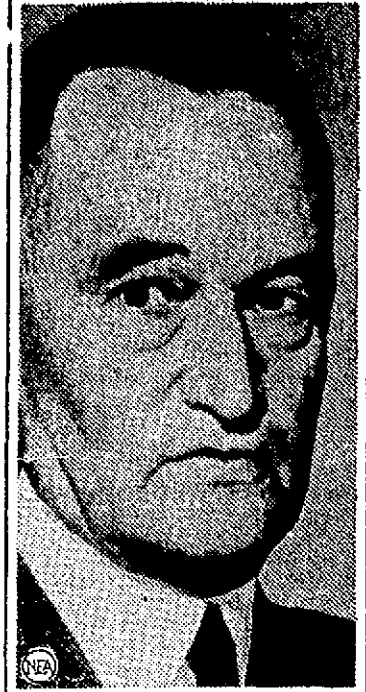

The peak of the 1934 driving season has brought higher speeds than ever before—faster acceleration, quicker stopping. Safety is the leading topic of the day. What are the causes of accidents under these new conditions? What can a motorist do to eliminate the most common causes?

The first thing to do is to find out how quickly you can stop. If your brakes are working well, and you'll want to see that they are, it will take you about 240 feet to stop when you are going at the rate of 60 miles an hour. Of this distance 45 feet is thinking time and 195 feet is actual braking distance. When you are traveling 70 miles an hour it will take you 301 feet to stop. If you are just moving along slow, say 30 miles an hour, you may think that you can stop almost instantly. Not so, it will take about 66 feet for the most alert driver.

Quick stopping ability will do much toward avoiding accidents at signal lights, on slippery pavements and when unforeseen circumstances arise. Safety equipment is one thing that you can be sure of, and it helps to overcome the uncertain human element—yourself and the other driver. Lights, horns, steering, mechanism, rear view mirrors, windshield wipers, parts affecting pickup such as spark-plugs are all important, but the most important single factor in safety at all modern speeds is your tire equipment. Don't drive on thin worn tires and don't buy cheap and inferior new tires.

The recognized speed and endurance contests where men battle for fame, fortune and world records will give you a definite idea of the importance of tire safety. When professionals buy tires on which they will risk their lives and stake their fortunes, they act with definite observation and experience. They choose a tire that will stand the utmost punishment and nothing can induce them to use any other tire. It is not the matter of chance or guesswork that for the past seven years Firestone tires have equipped the winning cars in the Pike's Peak Contest and for the past 13 years have equipped the winning cars in the Indianapolis race.

These drivers know all about construction, for example, the Firestone patented construction process of Gum-Dipping which coats each fibre with the cord body of the tire with liquid rubber. It is not the matter of chance or guesswork that for the past seven years Firestone tires have equipped the winning cars in the Pike's Peak Contest and for the past 13 years have equipped the winning cars in the Indianapolis race.

Harold Bell Wright is more often read than seen, but the famous novelist made this appearance in Los Angeles court to contend, in a motion picture suit, that he should have extra compensation for one of his novels produced as a talkie. Producers claimed a single sale agreement gave them all film rights.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

Text: 2 Chron. 15:1-12
The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for July 8.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

The story of kings and kingdoms is a badly mottled record. Highlights of nobility are intermingled with dark and dismal passages of evil in personal character and tyrannous treatment of those over whom rulers have had power.

The record concerning the kingdoms of Israel and Judah, from which our lessons are taken, reflects only what has been true in the history of other peoples and nations and their rulers.

The Bible consistently represents good rule and righteous conduct as approved by God and as making for social welfare and blessedness among the people, and as consistently it represents evil rulers as departing from the ways and purposes of God and bringing judgment upon themselves and upon their people.

In the broad course of history, the representation of the Bible is true. Sometimes we see a people crushed and broken where some heroic leader or ruler seeks to save his nation from the tyranny of a surrounding or oppressive power; but a history of evil deeds and consequences is usually found back of the situations of distress and trouble in which nations are plunged.

God is on the side of the people. The plans and purposes of God are in harmony with all that makes for good government and human welfare.

Fortunately, in the history of nations there have never been wanting true prophets of God and friends of the people who were ready to speak out against rulers, rebuking them when they did wrong and commending them when they sought to rule with justice and righteousness.

Here in our lesson we have one of these prophets, Azariah, the son of Obed. We do not know much about him, as we do about some of the other prophets, but the lesson tells us a great deal.

He saw his land given over to idolatrous and evil practices, and he went to meet King Asa, telling him plainly what the conditions were and what was his duty; that God would be with him and give him strength if he was willing to do right.

He appointed to Asa to re-establish law and religion among the people and to save the inhabitants of the country from the conditions of insecurity and violence that confronted them on every hand.

Fortunately, Asa responded to the appeal of Azariah. He found new courage in his own heart, and he led the people into a new covenant of righteousness.

How much we need prophets like Azariah, and political leaders and civil authorities who will respond with courage and sincerity to a like appeal! The description that Azariah gives of conditions in ancient Judah might almost stand for a portrayal of conditions in some parts of America today.

The masses of our people suffer from poverty and distress. In our cities, and even in rural places since the advent of the automobile and high power firearms, life and property are insecure.

Desperate criminals who will stop at nothing in attaining their ends have resources of ingenuity and escape denied them in days gone by. Even the arm of the law is not sufficient to cope with these modern evils.

We need an enlightened public conscience, with prophets who can express it and who have power to inspire leaders to a new sense of their duty and their responsibility for those whom they profess to serve.

It is the fact that such lessons, though it was written so long ago, deals so specifically with problems of our own time that makes its study valuable. Let us see to it that its application is not neglected.

Alice Tisdale Hobart undertakes another study of the collision of Chinese and western cultures in her new novel, "River Supreme," and once again she seems to conclude that China is a force that the western world can neither control nor understand.

Her story this time deals with an American ship captain who seeks to establish a steamship line on the turbulent upper reaches of the Yangtze river.

He goes there toward the close of the 19th century, when the upper river folk hardly know that white men or steam engines exist. He fights the destroying river, with its terrible floods, its roaring rapids, and its destructive violence, and he fights the blind prejudice and ignorance of the Chinese people; and after a quarter century he finds himself a great success.

The upper Yangtze is covered with steamers. Trade is thriving. China seems to be awakening from her long slumber. The whole land seems ready to give up its traditional inertia and adopt western ways.

And then something happens. China goes into a national self-consciousness and decide that her ways are better than those of the white man. White civilization has broken her old patterns, but has left her with no desire to copy the occident.

So, at last, the upper river goes back to its old isolation. The steamers withdraw. Hatred of the "foreign devils" rises anew—more dangerous, now, because the white men have armed and educated it.

And the book leaves China lying like a black cloud all along the eastern sky—mysterious, incalculable, and subtly ominous.

PROTECT YOUR FOOD AGAINST SUMMER SPOILAGE

Summer weather should put you on guard against contaminated food. For foods spoil easily in hot weather, and you can prevent such spoilage, to a great extent, by the proper refrigeration.

Given a combination of warmth and moisture, germs and moulds will grow on foods. The summertime therefore, provides ideal conditions for germ development, unless you take all the precautions against it.

The most serious germs that spread through foods are those that cause typhoid, dysentery, and other conditions attacking the digestive tract.

Even proper refrigeration of food is not an adequate protection against typhoid fever. Contamination of food by infected food handlers is primarily responsible for the spread of typhoid, paratyphoid and dysentery.

A few simple rules will help the housewife to protect her family against food spoilage and food contamination during the summertime. The first is cleanliness. The food handler should wash her hands thoroughly with soap and water before handling foods and particularly after leaving a lavatory.

The dishes in which foods are kept should always be scrupulously clean, but particularly so in summer. In fact dishes, pots and pans or vessels of any kind should be washed just before food is put into them.

Food in cans is probably safer in the original can than when poured into a dish that has not been properly cleaned.

Public health officials are supposed to protect the public against contaminated milk and water. However, many people fail to regard the warning notes that are issued and drink water from unprotected springs or even from rivers and brooks.

Milk that has been properly pasteurized and water from sources approved by boards of health can be considered safe.

All foods to be used during the summer should be kept in refrigerator at a temperature below 50 degrees. This particularly applies to milk, meats, custards, sea food and leftovers, which are the foods most likely to be contaminated.

During the summertime, if any two or three members of a family become ill after a meal, medical advice should be secured immediately. Furthermore, the doctor when called, should notify the health department, so that the source of the disturbance may be definitely determined.
